

In a Farmer's head

In it there is an empty wallet.
And it is full of nothing but dust.

And there is a field of destroyed crops
which have bananas weeping in the soil.

And there are children waiting to be educated
A wife waiting to be fed.
A cottage that could collapse at anytime.

There is an flood approaching their house.
And an stamped of bugs destroying their crops.

But thanks to fair trade there is a difference in their life

And a school filled with children their is laughter of children and farmers

An field with organic compost.

A wife a full stomach

I believe that fair trade has helped many people and will carry on.

By Anjum Arunwarussen

Avenue Road primary school
Leicester

